Juergen Gnoth is a senior lecturer at the University of Otago, New Zealand. He obtained his PhD in Tourism from the University of Otago. His research interests lie in consumer behaviour, tourism services marketing, place branding and marketing ethics. Juergen is a leading member of the Tourism Research & Place Branding Group and an international and cross-cultural researcher. The main focus of his research lies with the constructs of networks, intentions, expectations, image and satisfaction, but also with understanding and measuring the influence of emotions on consumption behaviour. He deals closely with Tourism New Zealand, and members of the tourism industry, such as hotels, airlines, operators and consultants to keep his teaching up-to-date and relevant. Juergen is a member of a number of editorial boards and Associate Editor- Research Notes of the top journal in tourism, Annals of Tourism Research.

Sonja Sibila Lebe is Head of the Tourism Department at the Faculty of Economics and Business, University of Maribor (Slovenia). Additionally to the pedagogic work, she has two advisory jobs: due to maintaining good contacts to the regional tourism industry, she has been appointed as the director of the RAST association (Regional Avio-destination of Slovene Tourism) – an organisation that is concerned to attract airlines to north-Eastern Slovenia. Additionally to this, she is head of the Scientific board of the Multidisciplinary Research Institute Maribor, where she is leading tourism-related projects and her research work in the field of tourism. As the team-leader, she has prepared several strategies for tourism product development on the national level, like: Development of Cultural Tourism in Slovenia or Development of Gastronomy Tourism in Slovenia. Her institute is very active in the field of eco management; Sonja Sibila is involved in advisory and consultancy work as well, e.g. coaching hotels on their way to attain their eco-certificate. Due to her multiple foreign language skills (7 languages), Sonja Sibila has often been invited to act as co-organiser of several conferences and seminars in Slovenia and abroad, where she has also acted as visiting professor. She has written a lot of scientific and expert articles and presented papers in domestic and foreign seminars. She also is co-author and co-editor of books and reviewer in several domestic and foreign scientific journals including Tourism Management.
